Dear Josh,

As Dick Davies has told you, I have reserved a room for you at the Athenaeum for the 19th and 20th. We might just be able to put everybody up there, and Dick is trying to find out how many will definitely attend. I have also put you down for a place at the dinner on Friday night, where Glennan will speak. Pearl and I are going, too, and so is Dick.

I will send the addition/copies of my report in a few days.

I will meet the Lark at Glendale on Thursday morning. It is due at 8:02, and this will give us time to get you over to the Athenaeum before the start of the colloquium. We will save at least half an hour and a lot of unpleasant freeway driving at a rush hour if you get off at Glendale, instead of going into L.A.

I think I will write to Oparin, but first I'd like to know what became of your projected meeting with Timakov in Stockholm. Oparin's letter sounds quite encouraging, actually. What transpired at the Stockholm meeting?

I also enjoyed the Stanford meeting and am looking forward to learning something about Venus this month.

Regards,

Norman Horowitz

P.S. Wait for me if I'm late at Glendale. I'm usually on time.
